

Respect Campaign Ideas

Forest Grove High School

>>Respect Week

Forest Grove had 4 classes that went to local elementary schools and did presentations on respect. They handed out students the respect challenge asking students to make a respect chain. A week later they went back to follow up with the elementary schools to see how their respect chains were!

They also had people signing the pledge banner at the high school during lunches in the first week of March. Students handed out stickers and sold respect t-shirts. Students put up empowering respectful quotes around the school and started a month long respect campaign. Calendars were hung up around the school with different ways to show respect every day, there were also daily announcements about the activity for the day.

>>Respect – O – Grams

Students made and sold Respect-o-grams, which were little cards with candy that people could give to someone they respected.

Sherwood High School

>>Unity Week

During lunch Sherwood High School had students walk around to encourage students and staff to sign the pledge banner. While they were walking around they were promoting inclusive language. The banner was then hung up in the cafeteria to remind students and staff members of their commitment to promote an inclusive learning environment.

Sherwood High School leadership is also bringing back a “Unity Week” that is dedicated to promoting a respectful environment.

Clear Lake Elementary School

>> Respect Day

Clear Lake had students signing the pledge banner during lunches. After they signed the banner they received a Respect Sticker. At the end of the day the pledge banner was hung up on a bulletin for students, families, and staff to see. During this day all of the staff was wearing their Respect t-shirts.

Clear Lake followed up with their Respect Pledge by tying it into their Kindness Challenge that their feeder middle school included them in.

Roseburg High School

>>Disability Awareness Parade

Roseburg participated in a community St. Patrick's Day parade. In Roseburg there is a disability awareness parade, the students were in the parade with the pledge banner and encouraged the community to learn about the Respect Pledge while also taking the pledge.

Athey Creek Middle School

>>Disability Awareness Week

To kick off their Disability Awareness Week Athey Creek organized an all-school assembly to get their student body excited for a fun, educational and inspiring week of activities that included:

- Unified dodgeball game
- R-Word t-shirt design contest
- Pledge banner
- Pizza and bingo party

The Saturday after their Disability Awareness Week they had a Zumba fundraiser that was open to the community. This helped with the costs associated with their weeklong activities.

Sutherlin High School

>>Respect Week

- Monday: Sold Special Olympics Oregon Respect t-shirts and spread awareness about why the R-Word is not acceptable.
- Tuesday: Celebrated their school's Unified Sports program and educated students about what Unified means.
- Wednesday: Sutherlin's Unified basketball team played a game in front of their student body.
- Thursday: Student's signed the pledge banner.

French Prairie Middle School

Ten student leaders worked together to create a short presentation about their upcoming Respect Campaign. They presented to classes and also spoke during morning announcements to make students aware of the campaign and why it was important.

During lunch students had the opportunity to sign a pledge banner that the leaders had created and everyone that signed was given a pledge sticker. To wrap up their campaign they made a short presentation at an assembly to thank everyone for participating, pledging and raising awareness about respectful language.
